

THE CONSTITUTION OF THE REPUBLIC OF RWANDA.

We, KAGAME Paul,
President of the Republic;

Given the Fundamental Law of the Republic of Rwanda as amended to date, especially the Arusha Peace Agreement in its part on Power-Sharing in its article 41, and in its part on Miscellaneous Issues and final Provisions in its article 22;

Considering that the new Constitution of the Republic of Rwanda was adopted by Rwandan Citizens in the Referendum of 26 May 2003 as confirmed by the Supreme Court in its ruling n°of.....;

DO HEREBY PROMULGATE THIS CONSTITUTION AND ORDER IT BE PUBLISHED IN THE OFFICIAL GAZETTE OF THE REPUBLIC OF RWANDA.

PREAMBLE

We, the People of Rwanda,

- 1° In the wake of the genocide that was organised and supervised by unworthy leaders and other perpetrators and that decimated more than a million sons and daughters of Rwanda;
- 2° Resolved to fight the ideology of genocide and all its manifestations and to eradicate ethnic, regional and any other form of divisions;
- 3° Determined to fight dictatorship by putting in place democratic institutions and leaders freely elected by ourselves;
- 4° Emphasizing the necessity to strengthen and promote national unity and reconciliation which were seriously shaken by the genocide and its consequences;
- 5° Conscious that peace and unity of Rwandans constitute the essential basis for national economic development and social progress;
- 6° Resolved to build a State governed by the rule of law, based on respect for fundamental human rights, pluralistic democracy, equitable power sharing, tolerance and resolution of issues through dialogue;
- 7° Considering that we enjoy the privilege of having one country, a common language, a common culture and a long shared history which ought to lead to a common vision of our destiny;
- 8° Considering that it is necessary to draw from our centuries-old history the positive values which characterized our ancestors that must be the basis for the existence and flourishing of our Nation;

9° Reaffirming our adherence to the principles of human rights enshrined in the United Nations Charter of 26 June 1945, the Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the crime of Genocide of 9 December 1948, the Universal Declaration of Human Rights of 10 December 1948, the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination of 21 December 1965, the International Convention on Civil and Political Rights of 19 December 1966, the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights of 19 December 1966, the Convention on the Elimination of all Forms of Discrimination against Women of 1 May 1980, the African Charter of Human and Peoples' Rights of 27 June 1981 and the Convention on the Rights of the Child of 20 November 1989 ;

10° Committed to ensuring equal rights between Rwandans and between women and men without prejudice to the principles of gender equality and complementarity in national development;

11° Determined to develop human resources, to fight ignorance, to promote technological advancement and the social welfare of the people of Rwanda;

12° Considering that after the Transition period, Rwanda shall be governed by a Constitution comprising ideas expressed by Rwandans themselves;

Now hereby adopt, by referendum, this Constitution as the supreme law of the Republic of Rwanda.

TITLE ONE

THE STATE AND NATIONAL SOVEREIGNTY

CHAPTER ONE : GENERAL PROVISIONS

Article one

The Rwandan State is an independent, sovereign, democratic, social and secular Republic;

The principle governing the Republic is "government of the people, by the people and for the people".

Article 2

All the power derives from the people.

No group of people or individual can vest in themselves the exercise of power.

National sovereignty belongs to the people who shall exercise it directly by way of referendum or through their representatives.

Article 3

The territory of Rwanda is divided into Provinces, Districts, Cities, Municipalities, Towns, Sectors and Cells.

The law determines the number, boundaries, organization and functioning of Provinces, Cities, Municipalities, Towns and Districts.

Article 4

The Capital of the Republic of Rwanda is the City of Kigali.

The law determines the organization, functioning and operation of the City of Kigali.

The Capital can by law be transferred elsewhere within Rwanda.

Article 5

The national language is Kinyarwanda. The official languages are Kinyarwanda, French and English.

Article 6

The national symbols of Rwanda are the flag, the motto, the seal and the national anthem.

The national flag is made up of three colours : green, yellow and blue.

The flag comprises the following colours from the bottom to the top : a green strip, followed by a yellow strip both of which cover half the flag. The upper half is blue and bears on its right hand side the image of the sun with its rays of golden yellow. The sun and its rays are separated by a blue ring.

The law determines the characteristics, significance, usage and ceremonials of the national flag.

The motto of the Republic is : UNITY, WORK, PATRIOTISM.

The Seal of the Republic is made up of a circular green rope with a green knot at the base, bearing on its upper part, the imprints « REPUBULIKA Y'U RWANDA ». At the bottom of the knot is the motto of the Republic : « UBUMWE, UMURIMO, GUKUNDA IGIHUGU ». All these inscriptions are in black against a yellow background.

The Seal of the Republic also bears the following ideograms : the sun with its rays, a stem of sorghum and a branch of a coffee tree, a basket, a blue wheel with teeth and two shields one on the right and one on the left.

The characteristics, significance, usage and protection of the Seal are determined by law.

The national anthem is "RWANDA NZIZA".

The characteristics and ceremonies of the National Anthem are determined by law.

Article 7

Every person has a right to nationality.

Dual nationality is permitted.

No person may be deprived of Rwandan nationality of origin.

No person shall be arbitrarily deprived of his or her nationality or of the right to change nationality.

Rwandans or their descendants who were deprived of their nationality between 1st November 1959 and 31 December 1994 by reason of acquisition of foreign nationalities automatically reacquire Rwandan nationality if they return to settle in Rwanda.

All persons originating from Rwanda and their descendants shall, upon their request, be entitled to Rwandan nationality.

The conditions of acquisition, retention, enjoyment and deprivation of Rwandan nationality are determined by an organic law.

Article 8

Suffrage is universal and equal for all citizens.

Suffrage is direct or indirect and secret, unless the Constitution or another law provides otherwise.

All Rwandan citizens of both sexes who fulfil the requirements provided for by the law have the right to vote and to be elected.

The law determines the conditions and modalities for the conduct of elections.

CHAPTER II : FUNDAMENTAL PRINCIPLES

Article 9

The State of Rwanda commits itself to conform to the following fundamental principles and to promote and enforce the respect thereof:

- 1° fighting the ideology of genocide and all its manifestations;
- 2° eradication of ethnic, regional and other divisions and promotion of national unity;
- 3° equitable sharing of power;
- 4° building a state governed by the rule of law, a pluralistic democratic government, equality of all Rwandans and between women and men reflected by ensuring that women are granted at least thirty per cent of posts in decision making organs;

Article 23

Every Rwandan has the right to move and to circulate freely and to settle anywhere in Rwanda.

Every Rwandan has the right to leave and to return to the country.

These rights shall be restricted only by the law for reasons of public order or State security, in order to deal with a public menace or to protect persons in danger.

Article 24

Every Rwandan has the right to his or her country.

No Rwandan shall be banished from the country.

Article 25

The right to asylum is recognized under conditions determined by the law.

The extradition of foreigners shall be permitted only so far as it is consistent with the law or international conventions to which Rwanda is a party.

However, no Rwandan shall be extradited.

Article 26

Only civil monogamous marriage between a man and a woman is recognized.

No person may be married without his or her free consent.

Parties to a marriage have equal rights and duties upon and during the subsistence of a marriage and at the time of divorce.

The law determines conditions, forms and effect of marriage.

Article 27

The family, which is the natural foundation of Rwandan society, is protected by the State.

Both parents have the right and duty to bring up their children.

The State shall put in place appropriate legislation and institutions for the protection of the family and the mother and child in particular in order to ensure that the family flourishes.

Article 28

Every child is entitled to special measures of protection by his or her family, society and the State that are necessary, depending on the status of the child, under national and international law.

Article 29

Every person has a right to private property, whether personal or owned in association with others.

Private property, whether individually or collectively owned, is inviolable.

The right to property may not be interfered with except in public interest, in circumstances and procedures determined by law and subject to fair and prior compensation.

Article 30

Private ownership of land and other rights related to land are granted by the State.

The law specifies the modalities of acquisition, transfer and use of land.

Article 31

The property of the State comprises of public and private property of the central Government as well as the public and private property of decentralized local government organs.

The public property of the State is inalienable unless there has been prior transfer thereof to the private property of the State.

Article 32

The law shall organize national service, whether civil or military.

Article 48

In all circumstances, every citizen, whether civilian or military, has the duty to respect the Constitution, other laws and regulations of the country.

Every citizen has the right to defy orders received from his or her superior authority if the orders constitute a serious and manifest violation of human rights and public freedoms.

Article 49

Every citizen is entitled to a healthy and satisfying environment.

Every person has the duty to protect, safeguard and promote the environment. The State shall protect the environment.

The law determines the modalities for protecting, safeguarding and promoting the environment.

Article 50

Every citizen has the right to activities that promote national culture.

There is hereby established the Rwanda Academy of Language and Culture.

The law shall determine its functions, organization and operation.

Article 51

The State has the duty to safeguard and to promote positive values based on cultural traditions and practices so long as they do not conflict with human rights, public order and good morals. The State equally has the duty to preserve the national cultural heritage as well as genocide memorials and sites.

TITLE III

POLITICAL ORGANIZATIONS

Article 52

A multi-party system of government is recognized.

Political organizations fulfilling the conditions required by law are permitted to be formed and to operate freely; they must abide by the Constitution and other laws as well as democratic principles and they should not destabilise national unity, territorial integrity and security of the nation.

Political organizations participate in the education of citizens on politics based on democracy and elections and operate in such a manner as to ensure that women and men have equal access to elective offices.

The leadership organs of political organizations shall only maintain offices at the national, provincial and Kigali City levels.

Article 53

Rwandans are free to join political organizations of their choice or not to join them.

No Rwandan shall be subjected to discrimination by reason of membership of a given political organization or on account of not belonging to any political organization.

Article 54

Political organizations are prohibited from basing themselves on race, ethnic group, tribe, clan, region, sex, religion or any other division which may give rise to discrimination.

Political organizations must constantly reflect the unity of the people of Rwanda and gender equality and complementarity, whether in the recruitment of members, putting in place organs of leadership and in their operations and activities.

Article 55

The Senate may lodge a complaint against a political organization which has grossly violated the obligations contained in the provisions of Articles 52, 53 and 54 of this Constitution with the High Court of the Republic. In case of appeal, the appeal is heard by the Supreme Court.

Depending on the gravity of the violation proved, the High Court of the Republic may, without prejudice to criminal prosecution, impose any of the following sanctions against the political organization found guilty of the violation:

- 1° formal warning;
- 2° suspension of activities for a period not exceeding two years;
- 3° suspension of activities for the whole Parliamentary term;
- 4° dissolution.

In the event that the final decision of the court of last instance is the sanction of dissolution of a political organization, the Members of the Chamber of Deputies elected on the ticket of the dissolved political organization shall automatically lose their parliamentary seats.

By-elections are held to replace Deputies of the dissolved political organization if the remaining period of their mandate is more than one year.

Article 56

Without prejudice to the independence of each political organization and their collaboration, political organizations officially recognized in Rwanda shall organize themselves in a consultative forum.

The forum is mainly responsible for:

- 1° facilitating exchange of ideas by political organizations on major issues facing the country;
- 2° consolidating national unity;
- 3° advising on national policy;
- 4° acting as mediators in conflicts arising between political organizations;
- 5° assisting in resolving internal conflicts within a political organization upon request by that political organization.

The forum's decisions shall always be taken by the consensus of the constituent organizations.

Article 57

Political organizations which are duly registered shall be given grants by the State.

An organic law shall determine the modalities for the establishment of political organizations, their functioning, the conduct of their leaders, the manner in which they shall receive state grants as well as the organization and functioning of the Forum of Political organizations.

Article 58

The President of the Republic and the Speaker of the Chamber of Deputies shall belong to different political organizations.

Article 59

Judges, prosecutors as well as members of the armed forces, police and National Security Service shall not be permitted to be members of political organizations.

Other public servants and employees of public enterprises and parastatal organizations may join political organizations but shall not be permitted to take up senior leadership positions of political organizations as specified by an organic law.

TITLE IV BRANCHES OF GOVERNMENT

CHAPTER ONE : GENERAL PROVISIONS

Article 60

The branches of government are the following :

- 1° the legislature;
- 2° the executive;
- 3° the judiciary.

The three branches are separate and independent from one another but are all complementary. Their responsibilities, organization and functioning are defined by this Constitution.

The State shall ensure that the exercise of legislative, executive and judicial power is vested in people who possess the competence and integrity required to fulfil the respective responsibilities accorded to the three branches.

Article 61

Before taking office, the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the Chamber of Deputies, the Prime Minister, the President of Supreme Court, ministers, ministers of state and other members of Government, senators, deputies, officers of the rank of General and senior officers of Rwanda Defence Forces, commissioners and senior officers of the National Police, the Vice-President and judges of the Supreme Court, the Prosecutor General of the Republic, the Deputy Prosecutor General and such other persons as may be determined by law shall take oath in these words:

« I,..... solemnly swear to the Nation that I shall:

- 1° diligently fulfill the responsibilities entrusted to me;*
- 2° remain loyal to the Republic of Rwanda ;*
- 3° observe the Constitution and the other laws;*
- 4° work for the consolidation of national unity;*
- 5° conscientiously fulfill my duties of representing the Rwandan people without any discrimination whatsoever;*
- 6° never use the powers conferred on me for personal ends;*
- 7° promote respect for the freedoms and fundamental rights of the human being and safeguard the interests of the Rwandan people.*

Should I fail to honour this oath, may I face the rigours of the law.

So help me God».

CHAPTER II : THE LEGISLATURE

Section one : Parliament

Sub-section one : General Provisions

Article 62

Legislative power is vested in a Parliament consisting of two chambers:

- 1° the Chamber of Deputies, whose members shall have the title of « Deputies »;
- 2° the Senate, whose members shall have the title of « Senators ».

Parliament deliberates on and passes laws. It legislates and oversees executive action in accordance with the procedure determined by this Constitution.

Article 63

In the event of the absolute impossibility of Parliament holding session, the President of the Republic during such period promulgates decree-laws adopted by the Cabinet and those decree-laws have the same effect as ordinary laws.

These decree-laws become null and void if they are not adopted by Parliament at its next session.

Article 64

Every Member of Parliament represents the whole nation and not just those who elected or nominated him or her or the political organization on whose ticket he or she stood for election.

Any imperative mandate is null and void.

The right of vote of a member of Parliament is ad personam.

Article 65

Before taking office, Members of Parliament shall take oath before the President of the Republic and, in case of his or her absence, before the President of the Supreme Court.

The first sitting of Parliament shall be convened and presided over by the President of the Republic within fifteen (15) days of the publication of the election results.

On commencement of each term of the legislature, the first sitting shall be devoted to the taking of the oath of office of members of Parliament and the election of the Bureau of each Chamber.

The election of the Bureau of each Chamber shall be presided over by the President of the Republic.

The Bureau of each Chamber of Parliament is made up of the President and two Vice-Presidents and the Speaker and two Deputy Speakers respectively. Their duties are specified in a law establishing the internal regulations of each Chamber.

Article 66

The quorum required for each Chamber of Parliament is at least three fifths of its members.

The sittings of each Chamber of Parliament are public.

However, each Chamber may decide, by absolute majority of the members present, to sit in camera at the request of either the President of the Republic, the President of Senate or the Speaker of the Chamber of Deputies or a quarter of the members of either Chamber or the Prime Minister.

Article 67

The Chambers of Parliament shall hold their sessions in the Capital City, each at its respective Chambers designated for the purpose except in cases of force majeure confirmed by the Supreme Court upon request by the President of the Chamber concerned. In the event that the Supreme Court itself is unable to hold session, the President of the Republic shall determine by decree-law the place where the Parliament shall hold session.

Decisions taken in sessions in respect of which there has either been no convocation or no agenda has been distributed or which take place during periods outside the approved time of sessions or outside the designated Chambers are null and void, save as is provided in the preceding paragraph.

Article 68

No one shall at the same time be a member of the Chamber of Deputies and the Senate.

The office of a Parliamentarian shall not be compatible with being a member of the Cabinet.

An organic law determines offices which are incompatible with the office of a parliamentarian.

Article 69

Members of Parliament shall enjoy parliamentary immunity in the following manner:

1° No Member of Parliament may be prosecuted, pursued, arrested, detained or judged for any opinions expressed or votes made by him or her in the exercise of his or her duties.

2° During the session period, no Member of Parliament suspected of a serious felony may be arrested or prosecuted without the authorisation of the Chamber to which he or she belongs;

3° When Parliament is not in session, no Member of Parliament may be arrested without the authorisation of the Bureau of the Chamber to which he or she belongs, unless he or she is caught flagrante delicto committing a felony or the Bureau of the Chamber to which he or she belongs has previously authorised his or her prosecution or a court of law has passed a final verdict and sentence against him or her.

Any Member of Parliament convicted of a felony by a court of law of last instance is automatically stripped of his or her parliamentary seat by the Chamber to which he or she belongs, after confirmation by the Supreme Court.

Similarly, each Chamber of Parliament may, in its internal regulations, make provisions for serious misconduct as a consequence of which a member of that Chamber may be removed from office. In such a case, the decision to remove the member from office shall be taken by a majority of three-fifths of the members of the Chamber concerned.

Article 70

Ordinary sessions of both Chambers of Parliament shall take place on the same dates.

However, the sittings of each of the Chambers as well as the extraordinary sessions shall be held according to each Chamber's internal regulations.

The two Chambers of Parliament cannot meet in joint session save in cases of debate on issues in respect of which the Constitution mandates a joint session or formal ceremonies instituted by law or other official functions.

When Parliament meets in joint session, the meeting shall be chaired by the Speaker of the Chamber of Deputies and in his or her absence, by the President of the Senate.

Article 71

The Chambers of Parliament shall hold three ordinary sessions of two months each.

- 1° the first session shall commence on February 5th ;
- 2° the second session shall commence on June 5th ;
- 3° the third session shall commence on October 5th.

Where the commencement date of a session falls on a non working day, the opening of the session shall be postponed to the following day; or, if the following day is a holiday, to the next working day.

Article 72

Each Chamber of Parliament meets in an extraordinary session upon convocation by its President or Speaker, as the case may be, after consultation with other members of the Bureau or upon the request of the President of the Republic on the Cabinet's proposal or that of a quarter of members of the Chamber.

An extraordinary joint session of Parliament may be convened by common agreement between the Presidents of both Chambers, or at the request of the President of the Republic or that of one quarter of members of each Chamber.

The extraordinary session handles only the issues for which it has been convened and which have previously been brought to the notice of members of the Chamber or the Parliament before commencement of the session.

The session shall close upon conclusion of consideration of matters on the agenda for which the session was convened.

An extraordinary session shall not exceed fifteen days.

Article 73

Each Chamber of Parliament shall adopt an organic law establishing its internal regulations.

Such organic law shall determine inter alia :

- 1° the powers of the Bureau of each Chamber;
- 2° the number, duties, powers and procedure of appointment of standing committees, without prejudice to the right of each Chamber to establish ad hoc committees;
- 3° the organisation of departments of each Chamber managed by the Speaker or the President assisted by two Vice-Speakers and two Vice-Presidents as the case may be and the Clerk;
- 4° the code governing the conduct of members of each Chamber;
- 5° the different modes of voting, with the exception of those expressly provided for by the Constitution.

Article 74

Each Chamber of Parliament shall have its own budget and shall enjoy financial and administrative autonomy.

Article 75

An organic law shall determine rules not provided for in this Constitution relating in particular to the requirements for the conduct of elections of the members of each Chamber of Parliament and the manner of replacing a member of Parliament who leaves office before the end of his or her term. It shall also determine the factors which render a candidate ineligible for election, activities which are incompatible with the office of Deputy or Senator and the remuneration and allowances of the members.

Sub-section 2 : The Chamber of Deputies

Article 76

The Chamber of deputies shall be composed of 80 members as follows :

- 1° fifty three (53) are elected in accordance with the provisions of article 77 of this Constitution;
- 2° twenty four (24) women; that is : two from each Province and the City of Kigali. These shall be elected by a joint assembly composed of members of the respective District, Municipality, Town or Kigali City Councils and members of the Executive Committees of women's organizations at the Province, Kigali City, District, Municipalities, Towns and Sector levels;
- 3° two (2) members elected by the National Youth Council;
- 4° one (1) member elected by the Federation of the Associations of the Disabled.

Article 77

Without prejudice to the provisions of Article 76 of this Constitution, the members of the Chamber of Deputies shall be elected for a five-year (5) term by direct universal suffrage through a secret ballot using a system of proportional representation.

The seats which remain after allocation of seats by dividing votes received by the electoral quotient shall be distributed to political organizations according to the system of the highest surplus.

The list shall be compiled in full respect of the principle of national unity as stipulated in Articles 9 and 54 of this Constitution and the principle of gender equality in matters relating to elective offices as stipulated in article 54 of the Constitution.

Candidates may be presented by a political organization or may stand independently.

A political organization or list of independent candidates which fails to attain at least five per cent (5 %) of the votes cast at the national level during legislative elections can not be represented in the Chamber of Deputies or benefit from grants given to political organizations by the State.

Article 78

Any deputy who, during his or her mandate, either resigns from his or her political organization or resigns from the Chamber of Deputies or is expelled from the political organization to which he or she belongs in accordance with provisions of the organic law governing political organizations or joins another political organization, shall automatically lose his or her seat in the Chamber of Deputies.

Disputes relating to decisions taken in accordance with the preceding paragraph are adjudicated by the High Court of the Republic in the first instance and by the Supreme Court in the second and the last instance.

In the event of an appeal, the execution of the decision of the court of first instance is stayed until the Supreme Court rules on the appeal.

In the event of a Deputy losing or being removed from office when his or her term still has more than one year to go, the seat vacated by the Deputy shall devolve upon the person who was next on the list on which he or she was elected.

Candidates who are elected by means other than through lists of political organizations who lose or are removed from office as parliamentarians are replaced through fresh elections.

Article 79

Every year, the Chamber of Deputies shall adopt the finance law. It shall receive the finance bill before commencement of the Budget session.

The Chamber of Deputies shall examine the Budget for the next financial year on the basis of the budget implementation report for the current year presented to it by the Cabinet.

Every financial year and before June 30th of the following year, the Cabinet shall submit to the Chamber of deputies the finance bill for the concerned financial year with a report on the implementation of the budget certified by the Auditor General of State Finances.

The Cabinet shall submit a report on the implementation of the budget to the Auditor General of State Finances not later than March 31st of the following financial year.

The finance law determines the State revenue and expenditure of the State in accordance with conditions provided for by an organic law.

Before the final adoption of the Budget, the President of the Chamber of Deputies seeks the opinion of the Senate on the finance bill.

Article 80

In the event that the Finance bill is not voted and promulgated before commencement of a financial year, the Prime Minister authorises by an order a monthly expenditure on a provisional basis of an amount equal to one-twelfth of the budget of the preceding year.

Article 81

No taxation can be imposed, modified or removed except by law.

No exemption from or reduction of tax may be granted unless authorised by law.

The Chamber of Deputies may upon request by the Cabinet and after adoption of a law relating to certain rates of taxes and duties by an organic law, authorise its immediate application.

Sub-section 3 : The Senate

Article 82

The Senate shall be composed of twenty six (26) members serving for a term of eight years (8) and at least thirty per cent (30 %) of whom are women. In addition, former Heads of State become members of the Senate upon their request as provided for in paragraph 4 of this article.

Those twenty six (26) members are elected or appointed as follows :

- 1° twelve (12) members representing each Province and the City of Kigali elected through secret ballot by members of the Executive Committees of Sectors and District, Municipality, Town or City Councils of each Province and the City of Kigali;
- 2° eight (8) members appointed by the President of the Republic who shall ensure the representation of historically marginalized communities;
- 3° four (4) members designated by the Forum of Political organizations’;
- 4° one (1) university lecturer of at least the rank of Associate Professor or a researcher elected by the academic and research staff of public universities and institutions of higher learning;
- 5° one (1) university lecturer of at least the rank of Associate Professor or researcher elected by the academic and research staff of private universities and institutions of higher learning.

The organs responsible for the nomination of Senators shall take into account national unity and equal representation of both sexes.

Former Heads of State who honourably completed their terms or voluntarily resigned from office become members of the Senate by submitting a request to the Supreme Court.

Dispute relating to the application of Article 82 and 83 of this Constitution which may arise, shall be adjudicated by the Supreme Court.

Article 83

Members of the Senate shall be citizens of impeccable character possessing the qualities of "inararibonye" who are elected or appointed objectively on the basis of individual merit without regard to political affiliation. They shall be highly skilled in the fields of science, law, economics, politics, sociology, culture or be persons who have held senior positions in the public or private sectors.

A candidate for the Senate must fulfil the following requirements:

- 5° being at least forty years old;
- 6° not having been sentenced by a court of last instance to a term of imprisonment of six months or more in respect of which there has been no amnesty or rehabilitation.

Article 84

With the exception of former Heads of State who become members of the Senate in accordance with Article 82 of this Constitution, members of the Senate serve a term of eight years which is not renewable.

Article 85

Without prejudice to Article 197 of this Constitution, nominations of candidates for the Senate to be elected by the District, Municipality, Town and City Councils and the Executive Committees of Sectors in Provinces and the City of Kigali are filed with the Supreme Court at least thirty days before the elections.

The Supreme Court verifies if the candidates fulfil the required conditions, rules on and publishes the list of candidates within a period not exceeding eight days from the date on which it received the nominations. Elections are conducted in accordance with the procedure determined by the electoral law.

With respect to Senators who are appointed, the organs responsible for the nomination of designated Senator submit the names of the candidates to the Supreme Court, which verifies whether they fulfil the required conditions and rules on and publishes the list of appointed Senators within eight (8) days.

Senators appointed by the President of the Republic are nominated last to enable the President to take into account the principle of national unity among Rwandans.

In the event that some of the candidates are not approved by the Supreme Court, the organs responsible for the nomination may, within a period not exceeding seven days from the date of publication of the list complete the number provided for.

Article 86

With regard to Senators elected by the Executive Committees of Sectors, District, Municipality, Town and City Councils, a candidate to be elected must receive an absolute majority of the votes cast during the first round or failing, that a simple majority in the second round which must be organized immediately after the first round.

In the event of an elected Senator's resignation, death, impeachment by a court of law or permanent absence from the Senate on account of any reason when his or her term has a year or more to run, fresh elections are held. In the case of an appointed Senator, the organ which appointed him or her shall determine his or her replacement.

Article 87

The Senate has the specific function to supervise the application of the principles referred to in Articles 9 and 54 of this Constitution.

Article 88

In legislative matters, the Senate shall be competent to vote on :

- 1° laws relating to the amendment of the Constitution;
- 2° organic laws;
- 3° laws relating to the establishment, modification, functioning and dissolution of public enterprises and parastatal organizations and territorial organisations;
- 4° laws relating to fundamental freedoms, rights and duties of the person;
- 5° criminal law and laws relating to the organization, jurisdiction of courts and procedure in criminal cases;
- 6° laws relating to defence and security;
- 7° laws relating to elections and referenda;
- 8° laws relating to international agreements and treaties.

The Senate shall also have the authority to :

- 1° elect the President, the Vice-President and Judges of the Supreme Court, the Prosecutor General of the Republic and his or her deputy;
- 2° approve the appointment of the Chairpersons and members of National Commissions, the Ombudsman and his or her deputies, the Auditor General of State Finances and his or her Deputy, Ambassadors and Representatives to international organisations, Provincial Prefets and heads of public enterprises and parastatal organisations which have legal personality;
- 3° approve, where necessary, the appointment of such other public officials as shall be required and determined by an organic law.

Article 89

The Speaker of the Chamber of Deputies shall, without undue delay, transmit to the President of the Senate bills adopted by the Chamber of Deputies relating to matters provided for in Article 88 of this Constitution.

Similarly, the Government shall submit to the Senate draft orders relating to the appointment of the public officers referred to in Article 88 of this Constitution for approval prior to signature.

Section 2 : Initiation and adoption of laws

Article 90

The right to initiate legislation shall be concurrently vested in each Deputy and the Executive acting through the Cabinet.

Article 91

Bills and statutory amendments which have the potential to reduce Government revenue or increase State expenditure must indicate proposals for raising the required revenue or making savings equivalent to the anticipated expenditure.

Article 92

Bills determined by the plenary session to have a sound basis shall first be transmitted to the relevant committee of the Chamber of Deputies for examination prior to their consideration and adoption in the plenary session.

Article 93

The law is sovereign in all matters.

Organic laws govern all matters reserved for them by this Constitution as well as matters the laws in respect of which require related special laws.

An organic law may not contradict the Constitution. Neither may an ordinary law or decree-law contradict an organic law and a decree may not contradict an ordinary law.

In voting upon a bill, there must be a separate vote on each article as well as a vote on the entire bill.

A vote on the entire law is conducted by calling each parliamentarian by name and the parliamentarian votes by replying in a loud voice.

Organic laws shall be passed by a majority vote of three fifths of the members present in each Chamber.

The procedures for voting are determined by a law on the internal regulations of each Chamber.

Article 94

A petition for consideration of a bill or any other matter on an urgent basis may be made by either a parliamentarian or the Cabinet to the relevant Chamber.

When such a petition is made by a member of Parliament, the relevant Chamber decides on the validity of the urgency.

When the petition is made by the Cabinet, the request is always granted.

Upon a decision confirming the urgency, the bill or matter is considered before any other matters on the agenda.

Article 95

With the exception of the organic law on the internal regulations of the Senate, bills on matters in respect of which the Senate is competent to legislate are transmitted to the Senate after adoption by the Chamber of Deputies.

In the event that the Senate does not approve a bill transmitted to it or amendments proposed by the Senate are not acceptable to the Chamber of Deputies, both Chambers set up a commission composed of an equal number of Deputies and Senators which make proposals on matters still being debated.

Both Chambers are notified by the Commission of the compromise reached and the Chambers decide on it.

In the event that the compromise decision is not adopted by both Chambers, the bill is returned to the initiator.

Article 96

The authentic interpretation of laws shall be done by both Chambers of Parliament acting jointly after the Supreme Court has given an opinion on the matter; each Chamber shall decide on the basis of the majority referred to in Article 93 of this Constitution.

The authentic interpretation of the laws may be requested by the Government, a member of one of the Chambers of Parliament or by the Bar Association.

Any interested person may request the authentic interpretation of laws through the members of Parliament or the Bar Association.

CHAPTER III : THE EXECUTIVE

Article 97

Executive power shall be vested in the President of the Republic and the Cabinet.

Section one : The President of the Republic

Article 98

- 8° be resident in Rwanda at the time of submission of his or her candidacy.

Article 100

The election of the President of the Republic shall be by universal suffrage through a direct and secret ballot with a simple majority of the votes cast.

The Supreme Court proclaims the final results of the election.

Article 101

The President of the Republic is elected for a term of seven years renewable only once.

Under no circumstances shall a person hold the office of President of Republic for more than two terms.

Article 102

Without prejudice to the provisions of Article 196 of this Constitution, elections for President are held not less than thirty days and not more than sixty days before the expiration of the term of the incumbent President.

Article 103

An organic law shall determine the procedure concerning the presentation of the candidates for presidential elections, the conduct of elections, the counting of ballots, the modalities of resolving election disputes and declaration of results and the time within which the results shall be declared and other matters which are necessary to ensure that elections are conducted well and held in transparency.

Article 104

Without prejudice to provisions of Article 196 of this Constitution, before assuming the duties of office, the President of the Republic shall take the oath of office before the President of the Supreme Court in the presence of both Chambers of Parliament in these words:

« I,..... solemnly swear to the Nation that I shall:

- 1° diligently fulfil the responsibilities entrusted to me;*
- 2° remain loyal to the Republic of Rwanda ;*
- 3° observe and defend the Constitution and the other laws;*
- 4° preserve peace, territorial integrity and consolidate national unity;*
- 5° conscientiously fulfil my duties without any discrimination;*
- 6° never use the powers conferred upon me for personal ends;*
- 7° guarantee the respect of the freedoms and fundamental rights of the human being and safeguard the interests of the Rwandan people.*

Should I fail to honour this oath, may I face the rigours of law.

So help me God. »

Article 105

The incumbent President of the Republic remains in office until his or her successor assumes office.

However, the incumbent President may not, during this period, exercise the following powers :

- 1° declaration of war;
- 2° declaration of a state of emergency or a state of siege;
- 3° calling a referendum.

In addition, the Constitution shall not be amended during this period.

In the event that the duly elected President of the Republic dies or is on account of any reason permanently unable or otherwise chooses not to assume office, new elections are held.

Article 106

The office of the President of the Republic is incompatible with the holding of any other elective public office, public function or any other civilian or military employment or professional activities.

Article 107

In the event of the death, resignation or permanent incapacity of the President of the Republic, the President is replaced in an acting capacity by the President of the Senate; in the absence of the President of the Senate, by the Speaker of the Chamber of Deputies and in the absence of both, the duties of the President are assumed in an acting capacity by the Prime Minister.

The acting President of the Republic referred to in this article shall not make appointments to public office, call a referendum, initiate an amendment to the Constitution, exercise the prerogative of mercy or make a declaration of war.

In the event that the office of the President of the Republic becomes vacant before the expiry of the President's term, elections to replace him or her are organized within a period not exceeding ninety days.

In the case of the President of the Republic being out of the country, sick or temporarily unable to perform his or her duties, his or her duties are assumed by the Prime Minister.

Article 108

The President of the Republic promulgates laws within fifteen days from the day on which the laws are delivered to the Cabinet.

However, the President of the Republic may before promulgation of laws request Parliament to reconsider them.

In such a case, should Parliament adopt the laws by, in the case of ordinary laws, a majority of two thirds and in the case of the organic laws, a majority of three-quarters, the President of the Republic must promulgate the laws within the period referred to in paragraph one of this article.

Article 109

Upon the proposal of the Cabinet and after receiving an advisory opinion of the Supreme Court, the President of the Republic may call a referendum on issues of general national interest, on a bill of an ordinary law, on a bill of an organic law or decree relating to the signature of an international treaty or agreement which is not inconsistent with the Constitution but has repercussions on functioning of state institutions.

Should the referendum adopt the proposal, the President of the Republic promulgates it within a period of eight days as from the time of proclamation of the results of the referendum.

Article 110

Article 120

Ministers, Ministers of State and other members of Cabinet implements laws relating to matters for which they are responsible by way of orders.

The Cabinet functions on the basis of collective responsibility.

An order of the President determines the Cabinet's functioning, membership and procedures for making decisions.

Article 121

The Cabinet deliberates upon :

- 1° bills and draft decree-laws;
- 2° drafts of orders of the President, the Prime Minister and Ministers;
- 3° any other matters in respect of which the Constitution and other laws vest responsibility in the Cabinet.

A Presidential order shall determine certain Ministerial orders which are adopted without consideration by the Cabinet.

Article 122

The office of member of the Cabinet is incompatible with any other professional activity or membership of Parliament.

A law determines the remuneration and other benefits accorded to members of the Cabinet.

Article 123

Before assuming office, the Prime Minister, ministers, ministers of state and other members of Cabinet shall take oath before the President of the Republic, Parliament and the Supreme Court.

Article 124

The resignation or vacation of the office of the Prime Minister on account of any reason leads to resignation of other members of the Cabinet.

The President of the Republic receives the resignation of the Cabinet when it is submitted by the Prime Minister.

During such period, the Cabinet only deals with routine business until a new Cabinet is appointed.

Article 125

Each minister, minister of state or other member of the Cabinet may individually tender in his or her resignation to the President of the Republic through the Prime Minister.

The resignation becomes effective if, within a period of five days, it is not withdrawn by the member of Cabinet concerned and the President of the Republic has consented to it.

Section 3 : Public Administration

Article 126

Public servants are recruited, posted and promoted in conformity with the principle of equality of citizens, through an objective, impartial and transparent system on the basis of the competence, merit and integrity of applicants of both sexes.

The State guarantees the impartiality of the leadership of government departments, the Rwanda Defence Forces, the National Police and the National Security Service. They shall all, at all times, ensure impartiality and serve all citizens without discrimination.

CHAPTER IV : RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN THE LEGISLATURE AND EXECUTIVE

Article 127

The President of the Republic and the Prime Minister shall be informed of the agenda of the sessions of each Chamber of Parliament and of its Committees.

The Prime Minister and other members of the Cabinet may attend the sessions of each Chamber of Parliament if they so wish. They take the floor whenever they request to do so.

They may, if need be, be accompanied by technical advisers of their choice.

Such technical advisers may only take part in deliberations in Standing Committees.

Article 128

The Chamber of Deputies shall employ the following methods to obtain information and exercise oversight of activities of the government.

- 1° oral questions;
- 2° written questions;
- 3° hearings before Committees;
- 4° Commissions of inquiry;
- 5° interpellation.

An organic law shall determine the procedures by which Parliament obtains information and exercises oversight of government action.

Article 129

In the context of obtaining information and exercising oversight of government action, members of the Senate may address oral or written questions to the Prime Minister to which he or she shall either respond in person if the questions relate to the government as a whole or to many Ministries collectively or through the Ministers responsible for the matters in question.

The Senate may, in addition, set up commissions of inquiry for oversight of government action.

However, it shall not conduct interpellation or initiate a motion of no confidence.

Article 130

The Chamber of Deputies may put the performance of Cabinet or of one or several members into question through a vote of no confidence.

A motion of no confidence shall only be accepted after interpellation and only on condition that the motion is signed by at least a fifth of the members of the Chamber of Deputies in the case of a vote of no confidence against one member of the Cabinet, or by at least a third of the members of the Chamber of Deputies if it concerns the entire Cabinet.

A motion of no confidence shall not be voted upon prior to the expiry of at least forty-eight hours after its introduction and it shall be adopted through a secret ballot by a majority of at least two-thirds of the members of the Chamber of Deputies.

The conclusion of ordinary or extraordinary sessions shall be postponed to ensure the application of the provisions of this article.

Article 131

A member of the Cabinet against whom a vote of no confidence is passed shall tender his or her resignation to the President of the Republic through the Prime Minister.

When the vote of no confidence is passed against the Government, the Prime Minister shall tender the resignation of the Government to the President of the Republic.

Where a motion of no confidence is rejected, signatories to the motion shall not introduce another motion for a vote of no confidence during the same session.

Article 132

The Prime Minister may, upon the proposal of the Cabinet request the Chamber of Deputies to pass a motion on a vote of confidence either in respect of the Government programme or adoption of a bill.

The debate on the request for a vote of confidence may not take place prior to the expiry of at least three full days from the time the request was submitted.

A vote on the motion of confidence may only be rejected through a secret ballot by a majority of two-thirds of the members to the Chamber of Deputies.

In the event that the Prime Minister loses a vote of confidence, he or she submits the resignation of the Government to the President of the Republic, within twenty four hours.

Article 133

The President of the Republic, after consultation with the Prime Minister, the President and Speaker of the two Chambers of Parliament and the President of the Supreme Court, may dissolve the Chamber of Deputies.

Elections of Deputies shall take place within ninety days after the dissolution.

The President of the Republic shall not dissolve the Chamber of Deputies more than once in the same presidential term of office.

The Senate can not be dissolved.

Article 134

The Prime Minister is obliged to inform the Chambers of Parliament of government activities whenever it is possible.

The Prime Minister communicates decisions of the Cabinet and supporting documents to the Bureau of each Chamber of Parliament within a period of not more than eight days from the date of the meeting of the Cabinet.

Moreover, during the session period, one sitting each week shall be devoted to questions by members of Parliament addressed to members of Cabinet and responses thereto.

The Government is obliged to provide the Chambers of Parliament with all necessary explanations on questions put to the Government concerning its management and activities.

Article 135

The President of the Republic may address the Chambers of Parliament together or separately, either in person or by a message read on his or her behalf by the Prime Minister. There is no debate on such communication.

Should Parliament not be in session, it or one of its Chambers is convened specially for the purpose.

Article 136

The President of the Republic has the right to declare war and inform the Parliament within seven days. Parliament adopts a vote on the matter by a simple majority of the members of each Chamber.

Article 137

A state of emergency and a state of siege shall be governed by the law and declared by the President of the Republic, following a decision of the Cabinet.

A declaration of state of siege or state of emergency must give clear reasons which justify it, must specify the part of national territory to which it applies and its consequences, must indicate the rights, freedoms and guarantees provided by law which are suspended and the duration of the state of siege or state of emergency which may not exceed a period of fifteen days.

The state of siege or the state of emergency cannot be extended beyond a period of fifteen days without the approval of Parliament, which approval requires a majority of two-thirds of the members of each Chamber.

During war time, when a state of siege or a state of emergency has been declared, the duration of the state of siege may by law be extended beyond the period provided for in the paragraph preceding this one.

The duration of a state of siege must not exceed the period strictly necessary to ensure the return of normal conditions characterised by democracy.

A declaration of a state of siege or of a state of emergency shall not under any circumstances violate the right to life and physical integrity of the person, the rights accorded to people by law in relation to their status, capacity and nationality; the principle of non-retroactivity of criminal law, the right to legal defence and freedom of conscience and religion.

A declaration of a state of siege or of a state of emergency shall not under any circumstance affect the powers of the President of the Republic, the Prime Minister, Parliament or the Supreme Court nor can it modify the principles relating to the responsibility of the State and of public officials provided for in this Constitution.

No elections of any kind may be held during or within a period of less than thirty days after the state of siege or state of emergency.

Article 138

A state of siege cannot be declared on the entire or a part of the national territory unless the country has suffered or is about to suffer aggression by foreign states, faces grave dangers or in the case of destabilisation of the institutions established by this Constitution.

A state of emergency shall be declared on the entirety or part of the national territory when the country faces a public disaster or constitutional crisis whose gravity does not warrant the declaration of a state of siege.

Article 139

During the period of a state of siege or a state of emergency, the Chamber of Deputies cannot be dissolved and the Chambers of Parliament shall be recalled immediately if they are in recess.

If at the time of a declaration of a state of siege or of a state of emergency the Chamber of Deputies has previously been dissolved or its term has expired, the powers of Parliament relating to a state of siege or a state of emergency shall be exercised by the Senate.

CHAPTER V : THE JUDICIARY

Section one : General Provisions

Article 140

Judicial Power is exercised by the Supreme Court and other courts established by the Constitution and other laws.

The Judiciary is independent and separate from the legislative and executive branches of government.

It enjoys financial and administrative autonomy.

Justice is rendered in the name of the people and nobody may be a judge in his or her own cause.

Judicial decisions are binding on all parties concerned, be they public authorities or individuals. They shall not be challenged except through ways and procedures determined by law.

Article 141

Court proceedings are conducted in public unless a court determines that the proceedings should be in camera on the ground that a public hearing might have an adverse effect on general public order or would outrage public morals.

Every court decision shall indicate the grounds on which it is based, be written in its entirety and shall be delivered in open court.

Courts apply orders and regulations only where they are not inconsistent with the Constitution and other laws.

Without prejudice to the principle of equality of litigants before the law, an organic law relating to organisation and jurisdiction of courts shall determine institution of a single judge in ordinary courts in first instance with the exception of the Supreme Court. The same organic law shall provide for the procedure of application of the provisions of this paragraph.

Article 142

Unless the law otherwise provides, judges confirmed in office shall hold tenure for life; they shall not be suspended, transferred, even if it is for the purposes of promotion, retired prematurely or otherwise removed from office.

In the exercise of their functions, judges follow the law and only the law.

The law on the status of judges and other judicial personnel shall determine the remuneration and other benefits due to them.

Section 2 : Courts

Article 143

Ordinary and specialized courts are hereby established.

Ordinary Courts are the Supreme Court, the High Court of the Republic, the Provincial Courts and the Court of the City of Kigali, the District Courts and the Municipality and Town courts.

Specialized courts, are the Gacaca courts and Military courts.

An organic law may establish other specialized courts.

With the exception of the Supreme Court, ordinary courts may have specialised and/or itinerant chambers established by an order of the President of the Supreme Court upon proposal of the Supreme Council of the Judiciary.

Courts may sit in any locality within the limits of their territorial jurisdiction if the efficient administration of justice so requires and this does not prejudice the normal business of the courts at their permanent seats

However, no special courts shall be created.

An organic law shall determine the organisation, jurisdiction and the functioning of Courts.

Sub-section one : Ordinary Courts

A. The Supreme Court

Article 144

The Supreme Court is the highest court in the country. The decision of the Supreme Court are not be subject to appeal save in terms of petitions for the exercise of the prerogative of mercy or revision of a judicial decision. Its decisions are binding on all parties concerned whether such are organs of the State, public officials, civilians, military, judicial officers or private individuals.

Article 145

The jurisdiction of the Supreme Court is provided for in this Constitution and other laws and includes, inter alia :

- 1° hearing appeals against decisions of the High Court of the Republic and the Military High Court rendered in their first or appellate degrees as provided for by the law;
- 2° ensuring that Courts act in accordance with the law, coordinating and supervising their activities;
- 3° ruling on the constitutionality of organic laws and laws establishing the internal regulations of each Chamber of Parliament before their promulgation;
